

"A Night in Hawaii" Will Prove a Beautiful Picture

Pageants wherein the characters will be clad in the costumes of the old days in Hawaii, tableaux, mele, singing of Hawaiian songs and melodies, instrumental music by Hawaiian musicians and just an interlude of hula dancing by little folk to show really graceful and beautiful was the old dancing at its best, these go to make up the program which will be offered at the Territorial Building in Kahului, Saturday in "A Night in Hawaii" as arranged by and for the benefit of the Hawaiian Woman's Club. The program, which is printed below gives promise of the best entertainment of its kind that has ever been offered on this island.

Almost daily rehearsals have been held of late, especial attention having been given to the drilling of the children's chorus in their songs and their parts, so much attention was not necessary for the older ones most of whom have participated in affairs of this kind before, but groups have worked here, and other groups there, and finally all of the groups have been brought together and welded into one great company for the coming performance.

Following the rendition of the program there will be a dance.

The Hawaiian Woman's Club which is conducting the entertainment is a benevolent association of the Hawaiian women of Maui working in the interest of Hawaiians who may be in need of assistance such as the club can give. Something of its activities have been told previously, what it has done for the Kula Sanitarium when first organized, for the education of some of the young Hawaiians and in other directions. One of its latest good works was a generous contribution for a chapel for the home for non-leprosy children of lepers at Kailua, Oahu. In many directions it reaches out to do good and all profits of the entertainment will go in the carrying out of such purposes.

The Daily Fun Hour

ANGLE BALL

The players are divided into two teams. Each team must keep to its own section of the ground, measuring about 20x30 feet, marked off on the outside, and separated into two equal parts by a line drawn across the center. In the far corners or angles of each section a right angle is drawn to mean the angle of the outside corner lines, and go form a small square. Thus, there are four of these little squares or goals, one at each corner of the playing ground limits. A player should be stationed in each of the goals. The rule is that the goal players in each section shall belong to the opposing team, as the object of the game is to throw the ball over the heads of the rival team, so that it can reach the thrower's own men, lined up beyond the central cross line, who try to catch the ball and so prevent it from reaching the enemy's goals back of them. Lots are drawn for the first play, after which the ball (a basketball or other air ball) keeps going backward and forward, intercepted as often as possible by the opposing team.

No player is allowed to go over the cross line, and no goal man is permitted to step out of his goal to catch the ball. If he does, the caught ball counts nothing for his side. When a goal man catches a ball without leaving the goal he scores one point for his team. He must throw the ball back at once, trying to pitch it so that it will get to his own team over the heads of his opponents. Game is 20 points.

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

Wishing Night
By DADDY
Copyright 1921, by Public Ledger Co.

Jack and Janet are sent by the Wishing Fairy to tell the forest folks that it is Wishing Night and each can have a wish. All choose wise wishes to make when the fairy appears.

CHAPTER IV

Two Wishes Go Wrong

"WHAT are your own wishes?" the animals asked Jack and Janet.

The children had to stop to think about that. They had been so busy carrying the Wishing Fairy's message to the folks of the forest they hadn't put their minds to work fixing up wishes of their own.

"I'll wish for a pocket that always will have money in it," declared Jack. Janet didn't know whether to wish for money or not. She had heard grown-ups say that money did not always bring happiness. Janet wanted to be happy.

"I'll wish for a glad heart that always will be as merry and joyful as on Christmas Day," she finally whispered.

"That's a good wish," cried all the animals and the tree spirits.

Jack and Janet turned their ponies toward home

Jack and Janet turned their ponies toward home. They hadn't gone far when they met the Wishing Fairy floating toward them.

"Have you spread my message through the forest?" cried the Wishing Fairy. "Is every one ready with a Wishing Night wish?"

"Yes, kind Wishing Fairy," answered Janet. "They are waiting for you."

"And may we go with you when you grant the wishes?" asked Jack.

"To be sure you may. But, like me, you must be invisible," replied the Wishing Fairy. "No one knows where or when I shall come, but the first wish they make when I am with them, that wish shall be granted them on Wishing Night."

The Wishing Fairy waved her magic wand over Jack and Janet, and tapped them on the shoulders with it.

At once Jack and Janet knew they were invisible, for they saw the surprised look of the ponies, Trixie and Topsy.

"Where have they gone?" neighed Trixie.

"I wish I knew," answered Topsy. "So do I," added Trixie.

"Your wishes are granted," promptly cried the Wishing Fairy. Again she waved her wand over Jack and Janet. They at once became visible. Trixie and Topsy snorted in astonishment.

"Where were you?" asked the ponies.

"We have been here all the time," answered Jack. "You couldn't see us because the Wishing Fairy made us invisible."

"Wishing Fairy, give us our wish," neighed both the ponies. "We want the speed of swallows and the springy legs of a rabbit so we can leap over the highest bushes and the broadest creeks."

The Wishing Fairy's smile turned queer. "Alas, you can have only one wish," she said, "and that is the first wish you speak in my presence on Wishing Night. Your first wish was to know where Jack and Janet had gone. That wish has been granted you."

Trixie and Topsy were surprised at that and disappointed. But they knew what the Wishing Fairy said was true. They had thrown away their chance for a big wish by making an idle wish that had brought them no profit.

(In Tuesday's chapter will be told how Topsy and Johnny Bull make a big mistake.)
